

RABBIT REVEALS STOLEN JEWELRY

Chased to Hole in Park at Bustleton by Woman, Thugs' Pelf Is Found

OWNERS IN HOSPITAL, TOLD

A frightened rabbit that ran into its hole in Pennypack Park last Sunday revealed the hiding place of jewelry stolen October 18 from the home of Harold B. Winchell, 705 Oakley street, by two men who beat Mr. Winchell and his wife, Marion, with a gas pipe.

An automobile party, which included Mr. and Mrs. George King, 1745 Gill street, Mr. and Mrs. John Lingham, 1753 Orthodox street, and Leonard Barry Bastian, of the same address, spent last Sunday at Pennypack Park, near Bustleton. One of the women saw a rabbit running about in the bushes. She picked up a stick and gave chase.

The frightened bunny made straight for his hole a few yards away and disappeared. The woman ran the stick down the hole and pushed and twisted in an effort to drive him out. The stick struck something she supposed was the rabbit, so she kept on pushing, but the rabbit did not appear. Suddenly she drew the stick out, and fastened to the end was a lady's gold watch and chain. Shades of Cap Kiki! exclaimed the astonished woman. They began to party in a chorus. They thought surely they had discovered the old pirate's buried treasure.

Gold Watch Is "Caught"

Again the stick was run down the hole, but this time not after the rabbit. When it was drawn out there was a man's gold watch dangling on the end. They began to think Mr. Jesse James might have been in Pennsylvania at some time during his career, but when they turned the watch over they found on the back the emblem of a college fraternity and the name "Harold B. Winchell."

The name was familiar and after going over some old newspapers they found the account of the Winchell robbery. They got into communication with the Winchells, who are both at the Hahnemann Hospital, and learned the two pieces belonged to them. The watch was presented to Mr. Winchell while a student at the University of Michigan. Police believe the robbers hid the watches in the park and were afraid to go back after them. It will be impossible to tell unless the robbers are captured, whether they put the watches in the rabbit hole themselves or if they hid them somewhere else in the park and the rabbit dragged them to its "residence." A search of the park failed to reveal any other of the stolen articles.

OPEN MUSIC SEASON

Matinee Club Has First Meeting at Bellevue-Stratford

The musical season opened for the members of the Matinee Musical Club this afternoon at the annual luncheon held in the Bellevue-Stratford.

The program included selections by the club orchestra, two groups of songs by Marie Loughney, a mezzo soprano, and piano solos by Robert Braun.

Man Released in Auto Crash

Lawrence Howe, Gloucester, N. J., contractor, was released today in $200 bail from the Atlantic City Jail, where he had been held following an automobile accident on Sunday night, when he drove his automobile into a pole on the Whitehorse pike near Pomona, injuring two persons. John Pettit, of Gloucester, who was taken to the Atlantic City Hospital, will be discharged tomorrow, hospital authorities said. Emmitt Black, also of Gloucester, the other injured passenger, left the hospital last night. Howe was ordered to appear for a hearing November 9.

CONCERT GIVEN AT STORE

Snellenburg Choral Society and Band Entertain With Program

The Choral Society and Band of N. Snellenburg & Co. gave a concert this morning on the fifth floor of the store building. The soloist was Royal P. MacLellan, tenor, who gave a number of well-known selections, among which were "At Parting" and "At Dawning." The chorus sang "Sweet and Low" and "Song of the Viking," the first of which was marked by the unusually good effects of the alto section.

The latter number gave excellent opportunity for the power of the male chorus to make itself felt. The professional from "Aida" was played by the band with excellent spirit.

DISCUSSES SOCIAL SERVICE

Dr. C. N. Lathrop Will Talk at Episcopal Church House

Tonight at the Church House of the Episcopal Diocese at Rittenhouse Square the first of a series of meetings for the discussion of the religious element in social service work will be held.

DRAINAGE ASSURED FOR FORTIETH WARD

New Boilers at Mingo Creek Pumping Station Will Be Put in Operation Today

CANALS WILL BE BUILT

With the installation of a new battery of boilers at the Mingo Creek Pumping Station completed, steam will be turned on today, and for the first time since the station was built the Fortieth Ward will be absolutely assured of adequate storm-water drainage.

The Mingo Creek Pumping Station, located on the Schuylkill River north of Penrose Ferry Bridge, was built in 1885 to pump storm water from the natural creeks of the Fortieth Ward into the Schuylkill River. This section of the city is more than four feet below the river level. The present daily flow from springs and other sources is 8,000,000 gallons, while during a storm it is estimated that the maximum amount of rainfall totals 60,000,000 gallons.

Until the present improvements were made at the Mingo Creek Station the pumping equipment was insufficient, with the result that the lowlands were often flooded. When the plant was built the boilers were only big enough to drive one of the pumps. Two new 150-horse-power oil-burning boilers, with oil supply tanks, have been installed to drive two recently overhauled thirty-inch centrifugal pumps. This will double the capacity of the pumping station, and the 50,000,000 gallons a day which can now be pumped will serve the ward for the next ten years at the rate the ward is developing.

Plans are being made to fill in the natural creeks which drain the ward, lined with weeds as they are, the banks of the creeks are considered breeding places for mosquitoes. Concrete canals are to be built to partially eliminate the mosquito nuisance.

Originally $200,000 was set aside by City Council for this work, but recently Charles J. Pommer, vice member of Council, introduced a bill which was passed by the vote of the Committee members diverting $100,000 for drainage purposes in the Thirty-ninth Ward. The money now available, according to Director Caven, will not be sufficient to complete the building of the canals.

While the Fortieth Ward is now assured of storm water drainage system, and Director Caven is having plans rushed for the proposed sewage pumping station at Eightieth street and Penrose Ferry avenue.

There is $250,000 available for an intake. It is expected that the work will be started early next year.

TEACHER TO APPEAL RULING

Miss Cheesman to Take Transfer Up to Jersey State Board

Miss Helen Cheesman, teacher in the Gloucester, N. J., schools, will appeal to the New Jersey State Board of Education against the decision of Commissioner Enright that the Gloucester School Board acted within its rights when it transferred her from the fifth and eighth grades of the High School to the fifth and sixth grades of the Cumberland Street School.

Miss Cheesman, through her attorney, claims the transfer is a demotion, illegal and a violation of her contract. She says that because the commissioner decided the case without granting her a hearing is a virtual admission on his part her claim is right.

When Miss Cheesman refused to accept the transfer the Gloucester Board dismissed her. Commissioner Enright, in upholding the transfer yesterday, ordered she be reinstated. Now officials of the board say they may carry an appeal to the State Board on the grounds she should be dismissed.

STRAW BONDSMAN JAILED

Philip Yoskin Given Three Years After Pleading Guilty

Philip H. Yoskin, 7717 Brewster avenue, professional bondsman, was sentenced to three years in the county prison today by Judge McCullen when he pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit perjury.

The charges grew out of "straw ball" cases, in which Yoskin went bail for twelve persons. It was charged that the property deeds he put up as security were false.

Yoskin's attorney made a plea for leniency, saying Yoskin was the father of six children.

MASKED GIRL HIT BY AUTO

Sustains Three Fractured Ribs in Passyunk Avenue Accident

Due to her vision being partly obstructed by a Halloween mask she was wearing, Mary Marko, eight years old of 1012 East Passyunk avenue, last night accidentally stepped in the path of an automobile at Passyunk avenue and Morris street.

Before the driver could stop his car the girl was struck. Three ribs were fractured. She was taken to St. Agnes Hospital. The driver of the automobile, John Cumberland, of Girard avenue, near Fifty-eighth street, was arrested.

OBSERVE ALL SAINTS' DAY

Catholic and Other Churches Hold Special Services

All Saints' Day is being observed today in Catholic, Episcopal and churches of other denominations in Philadelphia. This feast day in the Catholic Church is one on which there is the same obligation to hear mass as on Sunday and is preceded by fasting. The day is also known as Hallowmas Day.

Tomorrow is the feast of the Commemoration of the Faithful departed, commonly known as All Souls' Day. At today's mass white vestments are worn and tomorrow the color is black.

Styler
Ulster-Type Overcoat

Striking illustration of our style leadership. Comfort and warmth combined with style and appearance. Absolutely new—graceful in line—exclusively ours.

- The old-time Ulster Coat had many friends because of its generous proportions and cold-resisting features. But at its best the Ulster was a somewhat uncouth and awkward garment.
- In producing the "Styler" we present a coat of Ulster type which omits all the inelegancies of the old-style garment, but gives the same practical and satisfying results.
- The "Styler" has everything one could desire in a Winter Overcoat and bids fair to be the coat of the season. It is our own individual creation and cannot be had elsewhere—another forceful demonstration of the fact that the "New things are first shown at Reed's."
- Made in a comprehensive assortment of Imported and Domestic Overcoatings—Beavers, Shetlands, Scotch Tweeds, Irish Cheviots and Elysians in most attractive shades in plain and fancy browns, grays and Lovett colors. At $55, $60, $65 and upward.

GLASS

Balloon Hangars

THE United States Government Hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., is glazed with Actinic Glass because this kind of glass intercepts 85% of the ultra-violet (injurious) rays and 55% of the infrared (heat) rays. These are the invisible solar chemical rays that are destructive to the rubber fabric of which the gas bags of dirigibles are made.

We supplied this glass. Full information upon request.
